HARVEST REPORT

The weekend of 14th-16th of October saw our Harvest celebrations for the village.

On the Friday evening we were delighted to be able once again to hold our traditional Harvest Supper.

It was another chance this year for us to meet up and chat, and of course have a glass of wine (or beer) and enjoy the most wonderful food, produced and served thanks to Linda and a team of willing helpers.

The church was decorated beautifully and thanks for all their efforts to the following:

John, Louisa, Monica, Emily, Bronwen and Anna.

The beautiful array of flower decorations made focal points but the main thread running through the church was the artistic decoration of the candelabra with old man's beard and rose hips, and the baskets atop filled with rosy apples from the village. Thanks also to David for providing some wonderful homebaked bread for both events.

_ During the past weeks there has been a collection of food in the Village (special huge thanks to Maxine for hosting this!), which culminated in a final "Harvest Home" of it all in the church Service. There was an opportunity for toddlers to bring up their food offerings,

Whilst we were still savouring the tea and coffees, we were entertained by a stream of talented individuals:

Ted's soulful tones echoed Elvis to an appreciative audience, John recited a poem "what he had wrote", Ian, with Val and Linda, sang a couple of traditional ditties, and Karen travelled from much further north in the County to sing and play for us, a particular favourite being her own composition and tribute to The Rolling Stones, Paint it Black - about her fence of course!! The evening

The evening ended with the usual community singing of a few of Assington's "favourite songs". Daniel our new vicar had his induction via harvest supper!

(Apologies we were having so much fun we forgot to take photographs until half-way through the entertainments!).

A word of appreciation must also go to the two "modern men" who rolled their sleeves up and got stuck into the washing up; it didn't go un-noticed: a huge thank you and well done to both our public figures!

Donations for wine raised a fantastic \pounds 250+ for a chosen charity: UNICEF for the drought in East Africa.

Friday's Harvest Supper was followed by the Harvest Church Service on Sunday 16th.

and then (helped by the wider congregation) they sang "Old MacDonald Had a Farm", whilst waggling appropriate animal finger puppets.

Thank you to everyone who has contributed to the food collection, which will be taken tomorrow up to the Sudbury Storehouse food bank, run by the Vineyard church there. Your generosity is very much appreciated.

THINGS TO DO

B Hadleigh Choral Society

Come along for an evening of breathtakingly beautiful choral music, as the Hadleigh Choral Society performs music by Ludwig van Beethoven and Johann Nepomuk Hummel. Written in 1807/1808, Beethoven's Mass in C and Hummel's Mass in D Major include stirring fugues and counterpoint melodies, and range in mood from pensive and reflective to uplifting and joyous. We will be joined by professional soloists Zoe Brookshaw, Laura Smith, Richard Symons and Owain Browne, as well as the Colchester Symphony Orchestra. Conducting the evening's events will be Christopher Phelps.

The concert will be on Saturday, 19th November, 7.30pm, at St Mary's Church, Hadleigh. Tickets are £15, free for those in full-time education, and are available through www.hadleighchoralsociety.org.uk, members of the choir, or The Idler bookshop in Hadleigh. For more information contact 07886 416 034.

This is My Theatre performance of The Nutcracker and the Mouse King is being performed at St Mary's Church on the Chilton Industrial Estate near Sudbury.

It's nearly Christmas and Maria receives an early gift of a beautiful wooden Nutcracker soldier. Little does Maria know that his wooden figure was once a real child and when the magic of Christmas is strongest, the Nutcracker comes to life. Can Maria help the Nutcracker to defeat the horrid Mouse King and break the curse. Join us in a journey to magical kingdoms with music, puppetry and characters that the whole family will love.

The performance will take place on Thursday 8th December at 7pm with doors open at 6.30pm. Tickets are £15 for adults and £10 for under 16s.

NOVEMBER REMEMBRANCE (Another extract from PIPPIN'S PROGRESS, A Soldier Artist's War)

copies of which may still be purchased from his grand daughter:

annabel.thorogood@gmail.com

Comparative newcomers to the village (welcome!) may not (yet!) be familiar with the tales of old belonging to Assington folklore.

Major Richard Heseltine MC (1914-2012) was an apple farmer in Assington, and a prominent member of our local community from 1955 until his death. In his later years he wrote a book which gave a personal account of his war and battle experiences, recounted with humour and humanity, and illustrated by his own sketches and paintings.

Here is an excerpt from his book, from the chapter :

Alamein: The Battle of Tel El Aqqaqir

which he describes as realising (during the briefing), was a "do-ordie" operation.

'The Brigadier delivering the briefing dismissed us with the following words:

"You will accept 100per cent casualties; there will be no retreat," and he added, rather surprisingly, "You will take no prisoners". As I returned to my little command I decided not to pass on his orders. I considered they were bad for morale, and anyway I had no intention of obeying the last.

There was no denying that a certain foreboding prevailed. That evening our Padre took some petrol crates and covered them with a blanket, and placed the Sacrament upon them. Those who wished just walked in and stood in a circle and took their Communion. When, years later, I saw the film of Henry V with the glamorous scene on the field before Agincourt, I could not help thinking back to its parallel as witnessed in real life - the circumstances the same, without the pomp. Modern warfare has no frills......

On the third day a lone tank was seen to come back over the horizon. Someone cocked up their gun to maximum range and by some extraordinary fluke scored a hit, whereat the crew were seen to bale out. A scout car was sent to collect them and was met by a tall German officer purposefully marching towards them with his overcoat over his arm.He was General von Thoma, Commander of all the German and Italian armour and second only to Rommel.

On being taken before Montgomery he saluted and said, "You have won the war'. On being asked why he should think so, he replied: "What else can you expect when your commander-inchief is a madman?" Hitler had ordered Rommel to stand and fight to the last. No general worth his salt did not know that the only chance of continuing the campaign was to pull out as quickly as possible and save what was left to fight another day.

Just how desperate Alamein was can be shown by the number of our casualties. These included 22 officers, of whom 14 were killed and 7 wounded, with one taken prisoner. Among the men the proportion of killed to wounded was more than three-quarters -98 in total. There was little hope in a tank that blew up. The fact that all our tanks were fuelled by high-octane petrol was absolutely criminal. Out of 51 tanks taken into action, 47 were lost, most being blown to pieces in the dawn encounter.'

Alamein had a profound effect on us. I don't think we were ever the same again. We knew we had achieved a great victory, but where were all those who had achieved it? They would never be with us again."

ASSINGTON'S REMEMBRANCE SUNDAY SERVICE

At 10.30am on Sunday, 13th November the Remembrance Service will take place in Assington Church.

As on previous occasions

David Wiles will parade the British Legion Standard from Rose Green, starting at 9.45am. He will parade along The Street, ending up at the church for the Service, which commences at 10.30am

During the service, tribute will be paid at the village WWI memorial inside the church, and directly following the service another wreath will be laid at the WWII grave in the churchyard.

Everyone is welcome to join at any stage of the commemoration.

A VIEW FROM AROUND THE BEND

What a change in the weather, we seem to have gone from loin cloths to long johns in just a couple of weeks, Bobbie has offered to stay some nights during the winter as she thinks that two people in the same house would keep the temperature up a bit more. I am not sure how that would work as now that my large marrow has gone to Ukraine, there is not so much to do, but willing to try anything once I suppose. The extra cat in the house will also maybe make a difference although HE does spend most of his time outside in the yard with Henriette. I am being told that both need to be done and I need to see to that. More expense but I read in the local paper that the pension is going up ten per cent, so that may cover it. A reservation has been booked at Sudbury vets and Bobbie has provided a carrier and told me which side of the road to stand to make sure I do not keep going around in rings. It all takes three hours, so might get around to doing some shopping in Sudbury while I am awaiting for return journey on the bus. We all have to stay inside for a week after the op, so will not be around much while recupriating. Ouch.

Trying to keep the grass and weeds down in the garden since the rain has restarted, my what a difference, late crops of everything has certainly helped the larder and the budget, although eleven large sweet jars of pickled onions and garlic will have to be consumed carefully, maybe I can give a couple away, any takers, I think I had better restock on the Rennies as well.

Super crops of pears and apples now coming on and now loads of mushroomy type looking things in the fields as well, not sure if I should eat these as they do look very strange, maybe I will ask the new vicar, they always know about these things and I am sure he would not want to lose any of his flock so soon upon his arrival.

Having a real go at cleaning and painting the cottage, found sixteen cans of old paint in the outhouse and although there is a thick skin on the top, there is lots of usable paint in the bottom of the cans and it is still fluid and with the help of some turps comes back to life quite easily, not always the colours I would have chosen but the finished result is quite spectacular and has given a new fresh appearance to the old cottage. When I was very young I was apprenticed to a builder and was often sent painting and have found the revisiting of this skill very rewarding and has really helped pick me up after what has been a very difficult year.

Bobbie stuck her head around the door on her way to the tip last week and let out a scream of delight at my efforts, she said it reminded her of quadraphenia, whatever that is, I will look it up in the old Oxford English. Quite looking forward to her spending more time here now.

If anyone in the village would like a quick painting job done in exchange for some cash, then just let me know as I have several of the old cans left over still. Only just please remember I don't do heights, so groundfloors and bungalows only.

Have started spending more time walking around the village again, now that some of my confidence has returned and generally feeling better in myself, not really ready to engage with too many people at the moment as still feeling a little frail but getting much better and have spent time at the Church reflecting and also walking down past Averly Farm and on a couple of occasions down into Boxford near to what used to be an old pub that seems to have disappeared, so much traffic down there, I had to dive onto the bank a few times to miss Graham Hill and Stirling Moss racing each other down the lanes, downright dissgracefull. I tried to await until it died down a bit but as nightfall descended it just got worse and I came home via the fields in the darkness. I think I am not really geared up for this helter skelter style of living, maybe when I properly retire I will look for somewhere a little more remote and safer.

I hope all in the village keep well and healthy during these difficult times, although we moan and grumble, we are still better off than many that went before and come January the nights will pull out and the new seasons will soon be upon us.

Keep Well. Esra.

HAPPYSOUNDS CHOIR: CHRISTMAS FUNDRAISER ANNOUNCED!!

From Nettie Osman

Following this year's relaxation of Covid regulations, the Choir is very excited that indoor concerts are BACK this Christmas! To celebrate, we are holding a festive fundraising concert at Assington Church, on Sat 3rd December at 3.30pm, to help raise money for toilet and refreshment facilities to be built at the Church.

This promises to be an entertaining mix of Carols and Christmas pop tunes, with a few Carol singalongs thrown in for good measure.

Tickets will be on sale soon at £5 per head (Under 12's $\pounds 2.50$), and hot chocolate, mulled wine and mince pies will be on sale to help raise extra funds.

Please email janette.gunn@yahoo.com to reserve your seats!

DONATIONS NEEDED PLEASE - if anyone can donate some mince pies or red plonk for the mulled wine it would be much appreciated, please contact me (Nettie) on the above email address or whatsapp 07957 394780 if you can help thank you!

NATURE WATCH

Walking around the countryside during the past couple of weeks you, like I, cannot have failed to notice the huge drifts of acorns coating the ground beneath oak trees. One can feel them through even the toughest of footwear, making a crunching sound as they split beneath the weight, or rolling around and giving the feeling of being on roller skates.

The number of acorns produced by the UK's mighty native oaks appears to have increased significantly this autumn, following an almost total absence in 2021. This will come as a welcome relief for seed gatherers and wildlife alike.

Our oak trees are an iconic feature of our countryside, but they are in fact two species: sessile oak (Quercus petraea) and pedunculate oak (Quercus robur).

The Sessile oak is a tall tree that can mainly be found in seminatural woodlands, especially in the north and west of the UK. It is so-named because its acorns are not held on stalks like those of the English (Pedunculate) oak, but are attached directly to the outer twigs.

It can form quite dense, singlespecies woodlands when left to grow, but is not as ubiquitous as the English Oak in the rest of the countryside. Sessile oak timber is not as popular as that of English Oak, but is used for barrel- and cask-making, and gives wine and spirits a particular flavour.

Quercus robur, commonly known as common or English oak, is also known as pedunculate oak, because its acorns grow on stalks or 'peduncles'; however, its leaves do not have stalks.

Quercus robur displays a broad, spreading crown above thick branches and a trunk that becomes fissured with age. Its autumnal acorns are highly prized by both people and wildlife - the former use them for fodder for pigs and the latter often store them for the long winter ahead. Its wood was traditionally used for building ships and houses, and making furniture.

It can take over 40 years for oaks to produce acorns and they can suffer from poor natural regeneration in the UK as acorns are such an important food source for wildlife. The majority of new oak woodland in Britain is therefore established via planting..

The number of acorns produced by an oak varies hugely year on year – with some years of extreme bounty – called 'mast years'. The word 'mast' relates to the old English word 'mæst' – when acorns accumulated on the ground and were eaten by domestic animals like pigs. Similar to other tree species, oak trees flower each year, and yet only masts at irregular intervals, occasionally separated by several years. The acorns cannot be stored for long periods of time, increasing the importance of understanding, and harnessing the masting cycle for successful native oak regeneration. Mast years are influenced by three key factors: the weather; pollination efficiency and a tree's ability to regenerate spent internal resources, and for oak a dry and warm spring seems important, to allow for efficient flowering. The warm, dry spring air caused all the oaks to flower at once aiding pollination – plus there was less rain to wash pollen out of the air.

It is believed the summer drought undoubtedly had an impact on tree seed production, with many trees producing seed in numbers, but very early. Rowan is an example, where seeds would normally be collected in late September but most rowan seed has now passed over and withered, if not eaten by birds.

This year, whilst most oaks seem to have fared well and produced many healthy-looking acorns this autumn, the trees will also have suffered drought stress, with some acorns dropping early or dying on the branch; a surprising number of jet-black acorns have been spotted on many oak trees, the reason for which is still unclear.

SESAW NEWS

That silly chihuahua gave me the best laugh I've had in ages! He was boasting about 'writing' Kenny's SESAW News since 2012. That's a decade to you and me – but he never admits to being more than eight years old! He can't even get up on time since the clocks went back so here's my cat's eye view of this month's news, starting with a reminder about our Christmas Fair. Our volunteers have worked hard to arrange our first festive event since 2019. Lots of gifts, crafts and bargains plus Jeanette's Terrific Tombola and refreshments served all day. Open 10am to 3pm on Sunday 20th November at the Old School, Long Melford, CO10 9DX.

Mother cared for a variety of wildlife casualties this summer, most have been returned to the wild including a bumper crop of hedgehogs. They have to reach a certain weight before being 'soft' released but they surprised us. The original ten hogs had increased to sixteen, thus delaying their departure until the babies were also large enough to leave home. Despite their spiky exterior, hedgehogs are endangered but humans can help by supplying drinking water and cat or dog food to eat, never bread and milk. They need gaps under fences to

The evenings are drawing in and it's too cold to stay out but I always grumble when Mother scoops me up to go indoors each night. Anyone who thinks I'm a pushover doesn't know me, Ollie (the Black) Cat!

ASSINGTON PARISH COUNCIL

Matters of Interest discussed during a meeting held at Assington Village Hall on Monday 26th September 2022

Present: Cllrs Simon Thorogood, Bronwen Stacey, Ian Jordan and Tony Howcroft

In attendance DCllr Lee Parker, Christine Hargan (Clerk) and 2 members of the public

Apologies for absence

Cllrs Andrew Hill, Helen Wallace.

Declarations of interests

No declarations of interest were made

County and District Councillor reports and public forum DCIIr Parker reported that the council had been quiet during the summer, due to the annual recess and period of official mourning.

- Following consultation the Cabinet will discuss the district parking strategy w/c 3 October 2022.
- Belle Vue was refused planning permission by 6 votes to 5: an appeal is expected.
- Suffolk County Council has launched a group-buying scheme for householders who wish to install solar panels:
- Annual canvas for voter details is underway.
 DCllr Parker has been actively involved in correspondence about the planning application by Assington Autos, but has not received substantive answers.

Finance

From the RFO Report authorise payments to be made and note income received since the last meeting, review Reconciliation of Accounts against Bank Statements and the Statement of Accounts vs Budget

It was resolved to pay the accounts as per the schedule

Planning

Councillors considered the following Planning applications:

- i. DC/22/04627 Erection of 1 No single storey detached dwelling and garage (Plot C) | Land North West Of 'The Nook' The Street Assington CO10 5LW and Resolved to support the application

The Parish Council concurs with the heritage officer's pre-application recommendations relating to this application, and offers no further comment

Licensed Path, Footpaths and APC's Assets including the maintenance of the allotments and conservation area

 Handrail on Footpath opposite St Edmunds Church.
 Cllr Stacey obtained costs for the replacement of the handrail. It was resolved to accept the tubular option from the quotation, which would be finished with black paint and concreted in position, and to pre-approve the payment of the estimated costs of £450.

- Cllr Jordan reported that he had received a complaint of fly-tipping on the path to the brook. He agreed to check and report to the clerk if necessary, so that removal can be arranged.
- Replacement of two wood dog bin posts with concrete equivalents is scheduled to be fitted by Sudbury Wardens on Friday 30th September.

Highways update

- 20mph speed limit Feedback has been mixed, generally with nondrivers pleased but some drivers are unhappy about the extra 45 seconds added to their journey times, and others finding it a challenge to maintain 20mph in a modern car. We do need to be careful to maintain community support.
- Two people have asked if the parish council will supply new bin stickers reflecting the new 20mph limit in the Street.
- Triangles. There was a suggestion that volunteers might wish to 'adopt' the new triangles at Rose Green and Three Ways. It was resolved for Cllr Thorogood to contact a local supplier to acquire a short-stemmed wild flower seed mix.

Quiet Lanes Suffolk

Cllr Hill's report was accepted and Cllr Hill thanked in his absence for all his work.

Light Pollution

New parishioners lighting up property throughout the night is an environmental issue as it affects wildlife. DCllr Parker to investigate with BDC Enforcement on environmental issues and report back.

Recruitment of additional Councillor

It was resolved to co-opt the applicant onto the Parish Council. Cllr Stacey to notify and ask him to contact the clerk so that an induction can be carried out.

- Consider amendments to the Donations Policy Cllr Howcroft to draft revision for discussion and adoption at the next meeting.
- To consider adopting the Councillor Code of Conduct 2020 it was Resolved to adopt this.

Bramford to Twinstead Reinforcement

No changes have been proposed that are relevant to the village. Cllr Howcroft to put work with neighbouring parish councils to respond if appropriate.

Questions to the Chair

PARISH CHURCH NEWS

Letter from the Rev Mary Cantacuzene Bures with Assington and Little Cornard

Dear Friends

One of the things that most people think of when they imagine "Christian values" is kindness to others. There has been a very tangible way in which some of the people in and around these villages have served other people (and God) over the past few months, and that has been giving refuge to Ukrainians fleeing the war. It has been an extraordinary act of kindness to open their homes (and in a way, their whole lives) to complete strangers.

They were generous with their private space, their money and their time. Endless time: filling in forms, registering with doctors, dentists, opticians, schools, banks, job centres, Social Services and the Passport office; running people to appointments and trying to enable translation from English to Ukrainian and back again. So kind, so selfless, and so very generous in every sense of the word.

Some of those people who arrived in the spring and summer were bereaved and traumatised, but their host families have gone above and beyond in helping them to adapt and settle in.

Now, six months on, many of those Ukrainian guests have found their feet in their adopted country: they have found employment, places to live independently and a new sense of belonging. I'm sure all of those guests will be forever grateful to their hosts: firstly for sponsoring them and then so touched by the love and care they have shown.

St Paul said, "Do not forget to show hospitality to strangers, for by so doing some people have shown hospitality to angels without knowing it". (Hebrews 13.2)

Our thanks to all of those who have gone the extra mile; I think I speak for us all when I say we are all so grateful and so proud of you.

With love in Him, Mary
